June 19, 2016

Reflection on the Scriptures

“They shall look on Him Whom they have” pierced.
—Zechariah 12:10; John 19:37

In American culture, most women, as well as a number of men, have their ears pierced. In recent decades, many get other body parts pierced as well. Though people might pierce their bodies for any number of reasons, body piercing is biblically a mark of slavery (Exodus 21:6). Slaves had their ear pierced to identify them as lifelong slaves (Exodus 21:6). If you've had your body pierced by a piercing gun or tattoo needles, Jesus identifies with you. He has pierced hands and feet (Psalm 22:17). His side was pierced with a sword (John 19:34, 37). "He was pierced for our offenses" (Isaiah 53:5). No one has been pierced as painfully as Jesus has been. When people look at your piercings, they might admire them or stare at you, but when people look on Jesus' piercings, their hearts are pierced, and they mourn for their sins (Zechariah 12:10). Jesus' piercings have the power to change hearts.

Instead of looking at your own piercings or those of others, look on the pierced Jesus. Let your heart be pierced with love for Him. Offer your body to Him as a living sacrifice (Romans 12:1) and a weapon for righteousness (see Romans 6:16, RNAB). Jesus, pierced for our transgressions, make our hearts like Yours.
